Fired cop's death marks third in a week in Philly

Cop deaths. The third death of someone who worked as a Philadelphia police officer was reported on Wednesday.

Former Philadelphia Police Department Lt. George Holcombe's death Wednesday was the third in a week of a man who was an officer of the department.

Retired detective George Permint Jr., 74, died Saturday when his car was hit by an ex-con fleeing arrest. Robert Wilson III, 30, was killed in the line of duty Thursday.

Fired

Holcombe was found dead at his home, reports say. A spokesman for the city medical examiner declined to comment on the cause of death as of press time.

Holcombe was fired in 2014 after he was arrested in November on charges of attacking his ex-girlfriend and threatening to kill her.

He had a preliminary hearing scheduled in the case on March 20.

Donations

Donations to the Robert Wilson III Family Memorial Fund can be made through the Police and Fire Federal Credit Union or online at www.gofund-me.com/officer-wilson.

Retired

Permint, a 74-year-old retired Philadelphia police officer, was killed in a Delaware smash-up by an ex-con who was wanted by the law for violating parole.

An SUV driven by Rashai Harmon, 26, slammed into a car being driven by Permint's wife, reports say.

Harmon, of Lewes, Del., blew through a stop sign just before the fatal impact, which also injured the Permints' granddaughter and another passenger.

Permint, who spent his entire law enforcement career in Philly, joined the force in 1966 and retired in October 2001 as a detective, reports say.

Harmon is charged with murder.

Line of duty

Brothers Carlton Hips and Ramone Williams are scheduled to appear in court for a preliminary hearing March 25 on charges of shooting to death Wilson inside a North Philly GameStop on March 5 and attempted murder for allegedly shooting at his partner Damien Stevenson outside.

Investigators say Wilson, in uniform, had gone into the GameStop to buy a video game for his son.

Hips and Williams, police say, did not realize a police officer was in the store when they announced the robbery.

Wilson was hit multiple times. He fired back but was fatally wounded.

Plans for Officer Wilson's funeral are still pending.

Grand jury. AG Kathleen Kane back in court over leak claims

The legal battle over whether Attorney General Kathleen Kane violated grand jury secrecy laws carried on in a Philadelphia court Wednesday.

The court met to decide whether a Montgomery County judge acted constitutionally in appointing a special prosecutor and convening a grand jury to investigate the source of media leaks regarding a 2009 investigation.

In December, the grand jury recommended criminal charges be filed against Kane for the release of information from a grand jury investigation into former Philadelphia NAACP head J. Wyatt Mondesire.

Montgomery County D.A. Risa Vetri Ferman must evaluate the case before choosing whether or not to file criminal charges based on the grand jury's presentment.

The Supreme Court ordered no charges be filed until they decided whether the grand jury had a right to exist.

It is unknown when the court will issue a decision. SAM NEWHOUSE

Man, what a nice day. Warm spell comes at last to Philly

Signs of spring. Short sleeves, iced coffee, lunch in the park.

A city shackled under the oppression of snow, ice and bitter cold threw off its chains and united under a banner of cold coffee, short sleeves, and extended lunches in local parks.

In other words, Wednesday was beautiful, and there's only eight days until spring.

"Is there a Rita's open?" asked Department of Human Services Social Worker Sharon Floyd, who was getting ready to eat lunch outside Wednesday afternoon. "If Rita's was open, I'd be there."

There are, in fact, several Rita's open and doing brisk business selling water ice. (This reporter

USED CARS as low as $999

FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Doylestown, PA – Fred Beans, CEO and founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group located in Doylestown, PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, March 14th at 9:00AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 8 Fred Beans Doylestown locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Doylestown features new Ford, Lincoln, Mitsubishi, Dodge, Chrysler, Jeep, Hyundai, Nissan, Subaru, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Buick, and GMC vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired for this sale at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interest."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that's right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of March 14th, after the close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10 million in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less-than-perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive home a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first-time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 8 Fred Beans Doylestown locations this Saturday, March 14th, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.*

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van, or sport utility vehicle, don't miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

Courtesy transportation is available from all local airports, train stations and bus depots.

ADA. Feds to look for restaurant compliance

Some of Philadelphia's top restaurants could get a visit from federal investigators to see if they comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the U.S. attorney's office announced Wednesday.

The announcement marks the first time the Philadelphia office has audited compliance with the act, which mandates that public accommodations be accessible to people with disabilities.

The U.S. attorney's office said in a statement that the audits were not prompted by any specific complaints, but that it is their "congressionally mandated responsibility to ensure compliance with the ADA."

Other U.S. attorneys' offices have recently initiated similar reviews, including in New York and Vermont.

The restaurants were selected by the attorney's office through media reviews and online

Representatives there did not return calls for comment.

The reviews may not be a problem for newer restaurants because architects design with the law in mind.

Search continues in military copter crash off Florida, 11 dead

Fatalities. The accident could be among the deadliest domestic military training accidents in years.

Seven Marines and four soldiers were presumed dead after an Army Black Hawk helicopter crashed on a nighttime training mission off the Florida coast, where U.S. military officials were still conducting a search-and-rescue operation on Wednesday afternoon.

Some human remains had washed ashore, said a spokeswoman for Eglin Air Force Base in north Florida.

Officials did not immediately release information on what caused the crash involving the Marines and four members of the Louisiana National Guard.

Heavy fog was reported around the time the helicopter was reported missing around 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday. Fog hampered the search effort on Wednesday.

One of two UH-60 Black Hawk helicopters participating in the routine exercise crashed near the base 50 miles east of Pensacola, and rescue workers discovered debris about 2 a.m. on Wednesday, the base said in a statement.

The other helicopter "started to take off and then realized, I guess, that the weather was a condition and turned around," Major General Glenn

The second helicopter landed safely, the military said. Names of the missing troops were being withheld.

The Marines were part of a special operations unit from Camp Lejeune in North Carolina.

Slain MIT police officer Sean Collier / GETTY IMAGES

Boston bombing jury hears 'officer down' police radio call

Prosecutors. They turned to the charge that the defendant and his brother murdered the MIT officer.

A Massachusetts Institute of Technology police officer who found a colleague in his squad car covered in blood three nights after the Boston Marathon bombing frantically repeated two words into his radio: "officer down, officer down."

A recording of the radio call about the shot MIT police officer Sean Collier on April 18, 2013, was played to jurors hearing the trial of accused bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, 21, on Wednesday.

Collier's death marked the start of a chaotic 24 hours that saw the brothers carjack a man and hurl explosives at police during a shoot-out that ended when Dzhokhar Tsarnaev roared off in a car, running over and killing 26-year-old Tamerlan Tsarnaev before disappearing into a dry-docked boat in the Boston suburb of Watertown. Police found him the next evening, after a day-long lockdown of much of the Boston area when hundreds of thousands of people hid in their homes.

The officer who found Collier, Sergeant Clarence Henniger, said he was responding to a 911 call about possible shots fired on MIT's Cambridge, Massachusetts, campus just outside Boston. Collier had visible bullet wounds to his temple, neck and hand and was so covered in blood

Quoted

"I could hear gargling coming from his mouth."

Henniger testified at U.S. District Court in Boston.

that Henniger struggled to pull him from his vehicle.

Jurors also saw surveillance footage of two figures approaching Collier's police cruiser on the MIT campus, spending about a minute at the car, and leaving. The only visible suggestions of commotion in the video are the car's brake lights, flashing on and off.

Collier's gun belt and holster were covered in blood, evidence of Tsarnaev's clumsy but unsuccessful effort to steal his handgun, prosecutors have said. REUTERS

After 12-hour outage, Apple reopens iTunes, App store

An outage that shut down Apple's iTunes, iBooks and App Store started at 5 a.m. Wednesday and wasn't fixed for nearly 12 hours.

The global shutdown made it impossible for iPhone and iPad users to connect to the company's services.

Almost all day,

Apple app store / GETTY IMAGES

Apple's system status page showed four of its dozens of services down — but they were the big ones: iTunes, iBooks, App Store, and Mac App store.

Apple blamed the problem "on an internal error affecting the system for directing online traffic."

The digital downtime comes just two days after the company unveiled the Apple Watch.

Many users took to social media and wondered whether the company is about to announce a credit card breach. There was no indication that that is the case.

Now, some users want Apple to comp them a day.

CHAPTER ONE MR. BAKER

He's here. I set my newspaper down, and my wife shoos me out of the back door, leaving me and this young girl to stare at each other from across the garden. I notice I'm still wearing my slippers, and can tell by her grin, Natalie notices too. I sigh, tilt my head and nod toward the garden. We both begin to weed. She's not the best gardener. In fact, Natalie has an uncanny ability to confuse my daffodils with dandelions. But she works hard and, I have to say, she's grown on me. She never lets us pay her, but that hasn't stopped my wife and me from sneaking the occasional twenty dollars into her backpack. As she leaves for the day, backpack in tow, I smile, knowing that at least in a small way, her hard work has been rewarded today.

Five things you need to know

Kerry tells Republicans: You cannot modify Iran-U.S. nuclear deal

Secretary of State John Kerry told Republicans who control Congress on Wednesday they would not be able to modify any nuclear agreement struck between the United States and Iran.

Kerry said he responded with "utter disbelief" to an open letter to Iran on Monday signed only by Republican senators that said any deal would only last as long as U.S. President Barack Obama, a Democrat, remains in office.

"When it says that Congress could actually modify the terms of an agreement at any time is flat wrong," Kerry, who has been negotiating a deal to rein in Iran's nuclear program in exchange for easing sanctions, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "You don't have the right to modify an agreement reached executive to executive between leaders of a country."

But Sen. Rand Paul, a possible Republican presidential candidate in 2016, told Kerry that any deal would need approval by Congress if it affected U.S. sanctions against Iran. Paul accused the Obama administration of trying to bypass Congress.

"The letter was to Iran, but it should've been cc'd to the White House because the White House needs to understand that any agreement that removes or changes legislation will have to be passed by us," the senator said.

Oregon city considers penalizing growers for smelly pot

The Oregon city of Medford, where officials say residents have long grumbled about the odor of marijuana growing operations, is considering a regulation that would fine pot growers if their marijuana is too smelly, city officials said on Wednesday.

The city's legal staff has drafted an ordinance that would fine both medical and recreational marijuana growers whose operations are too malodorous up to $250 a day and would give the city power to seize plants if growers don't come into compliance.

Facebook to face lawsuit over children's online purchase

A federal judge said Facebook Inc. must face a nationwide class-action lawsuit seeking to force the social media company to provide refunds when children spend their parents' money on its website without permission.

U.S. District Judge Beth Labson Freeman in San Jose, California on Tuesday said a class of plaintiffs estimated in the hundreds of thousands may press their claim that Facebook should change how it handles online transactions by minors. REUTERS

GOP lawmaker to summon Clinton for testimony by April

A leading Republican critic of Hillary Clinton said on Wednesday he wants the former secretary of state to testify about her controversial use of personal email for government work by April, timing that could coincide with her expected launch of a 2016 presidential campaign.

"I would like to have it done by April," Representative Trey Gowdy, a South Carolina Republican who chairs a congressional committee investigating the 2012 attacks on a U.S. diplomatic facility in Benghazi, Libya, said on Wednesday.

Ferguson police chief resigns

The police chief of Ferguson, Missouri, resigned on Wednesday, following a scathing Justice Department report that found widespread abuses in the city's policing and courts, sources with knowledge of the matter said.

Chief Thomas Jackson is the latest in a string of departures since the findings of the Justice Department probe were announced on March 4.

Protesters have called for his removal since the fatal shooting of an unarmed black teen last summer, which led to the Justice Department report that found widespread racially biased practices in his department.

Not here please. High-tech paint gives urinating revelers a soaking

People living in Hamburg's St. Pauli's nightclub district are used to hordes of drunken tourists, crime and prostitution, but many are fed up with late-night revelers who urinate on public and private buildings.

A local interest group has now applied a special water-repellent paint, also used in shipbuilding, on two especially frequented buildings in the renowned nightclub district near the port to deter "Wildpinkler," as Germans call them.

Ultra-Ever Dry super-hydrophobic was developed by automakers Nissan. Its oleophobic nano-coating is water repellent, meaning that those revelers who urinate against it will end up soaking themselves.

"Wild peeing has been a problem here for a long time. But in recent years, it got worse," Julia Staron, who organized the group, told Reuters.

A video screenshot showing what happens when a person urinates on the special water-repellent paint. / YOUTUBE

Cost
$530

Staron said it costs about $530 to paint a 65 sq. ft. area but that it was worth the effort and was already having a positive effect on newly protected walls.

"Next week, we are also planning to paint the problem area around Zur Ritze [nightclub] and put up the signs. But owners obviously have to approach us because we can't just run around painting someone else's building," said Staron.

In a video posted on YouTube that drew 181,000 viewers on its first day alone, Staron is shown putting up signs in German and English that say: "Hier nicht pinkeln! Wir pinkeln zurueck!" [Do not pee here! We pee back!]

The special hydrophobic paint is, however, expensive. REUTERS

OMG! The new wearable gadget transforms the movements of your twerking into music

A new wearable aims to transform twerking into musical beats. The Booty Drum attaches to a user's derriere and records various body movements through accelerometers, translating the signals into "unique velocities and triggers." The Real Booty Music project sees a collaboration between Danish headphone manufacturer AiAiAi and Eindhoven-based tech firm OWOW. "It feels a little weird when a couple of guys are shaking their asses in studio," Pieter-Jan Pieters, head of design at OWOW, told Metro.

The Booty Drum device / REALBOOTYMUSIC

How does it work?

The dancer has a device on each buttock. When they move a cheek up or down, it wirelessly triggers a sound to play on the computer. Left cheek up — "Sound 1," left cheek down — "Sound 2," right cheek up — "Sound 3," right cheek down — "Sound 4," both together — "Sound 5." So you can play five different sounds at once.

Who will use it?

For now it was a one-time prototype. We created it specifically for this purpose and for us to see what was possible. But if we develop it further, it could be used onstage or in dance routines.

Why have you made the Booty Drum?

We've been working on a range of musical instruments that you can control by movement for the last couple of years. It's based on the idea of creating instruments that you play much more intuitively. When AiAiAi contacted us about doing a fun project around twerking, it sounded super fun for us to develop a dedicated kind of instrument based on the booty shaking, and we started brainstorming about what kind of instrument it could be. We did not want to incorporate everything inside a user's pants and make it unseen but instead make visible instruments that clip on magnetically.

Ordinary musical instruments are not your taste, no?

We wanted to show that everything is possible. There are new methods in making music besides the traditional way.

Visit us online at Metro.us/omg for more interviews.

Nowadays, digital or electronic instruments are mostly just digital versions of old acoustic instruments; these instruments are based on pure physical and mechanical principals. With electronic instruments, everything is possible — we don't have to follow these old rules any longer.

Have you tried out the device?

[Laughs] Everyone at the office tried it. It feels super fun, especially if you have a small movement trigger a massive sound. But it's a little weird when a couple of guys are shaking their asses in the studio.

Question

What kind of new sounds are you creating with twerking?

The point is not to create a new type of music, it's more to show there are different ways to create it. For example, in a fashion show, the designer pushes the limits of what's wearable. In real life, you narrow it down to something useful and practical for more people to use. We're not pushing technology since that's not the hardest part in this project — but more in ways of using different methods to create music.

Mindy Kaling can't do one-night stands

Art, it seems, doesn't imitate life when it comes to Mindy Kaling, who is finding that the wild dating life of her "The Mindy Project" alter ego is screwing up what men expect from her in the real world. "When I go on dates, there's this expectation that I'm going to have, like, 11 martinis and, like, pass out and, like, spend the night really soon. And I think people get a little disappointed because my true self is like, 'I could never do that, like, have a one-night stand,'" the single actress and writer tells Ellen DeGeneres during an interview. "Because I have my medications that I have to take at night. I have to be at my house and do my flossing. I have all that stuff." Hey, maybe some guys are into flossing?

Maybe she just isn't over her ex, B.J. Novak.

Tony Bennett scores Lady Gaga wedding gig

Singing at Lady Gaga's wedding would likely be a pretty nerve-wracking prospect for even the most seasoned of young musicians, so it makes sense that the chameleon-like singer would go for someone who can handle the pressure. Enter pal Tony Bennett, who confirms that he's on tap to croon at Gaga's upcoming nuptials. "They invited me to do it, and of course I will," he tells Page Six. "She's marrying a very wonderful man, very talented and very handsome. I think he's going to be highly successful in films. He's a very nice person." I hope that's not his toast. Now, you can accuse me of being cynical or unromantic, that's fine, but I can't help noticing that Gaga and Bennett, who released their "Cheek to Cheek" duets album last fall, are embarking on a tour next month. What a coincidence!

'Empire' gets a 'Dynasty'-style opening

"Empire," everyone's new TV obsession, might be damn near flawless, but it still feels like it's missing something: an opening credits sequence. Maybe it's just the way TV is going, following the trend of "Lost" and "Breaking Bad" just having a title card and nothing else, but it does kind of feel like a missed opportunity. Luckily, the enterprising kids at Vulture decided to fix the oversight, enlisting video editor Louis Plamondon to give "Empire" the "Dynasty"-inspired opening it deserves. Nice work, guys, but maybe, I don't know, something a little more hip-hop would've been appropriate?

50 Cent's 2-year-old son makes more money than you

I never thought that toddlers needed agents, but when you hear how much 50 Cent's 2-year-old son Sire Jackson pulled down for a modeling contract, you might not think it's such a crazy idea. "He's got a [modeling] deal now with Kidz Safe," the rapper revealed to Angie

Martinez at Power 105 during an interview. "They paid him a big payment, too." And by big, he means a contract worth $700,000. No, seriously. That's a lot of binkies. "He's cute; you gotta pay for it," Fiddy explained. He also assured listeners that the money is going into a trust until Jackson is 18 years old.

'I Want You to Know' has a video

SXSW preview: Mark Duplass, keynote speaker

Interview. The actor, filmmaker and producer is ready to dole out some concrete advice in Austin.

Burgeoning indie film kingpin Mark Duplass is getting quite a platform this year at SXSW, where he'll be one of the keynote speakers — and he's not going to waste the opportunity. A longtime SXSW vet, Duplass — who also has four films in the fest he produced, including "Manson Family Vacation," "The Overnight," "6 Years" and "Adult Beginners" — has some concrete advice for young filmmakers. But the most important thing? Be nice.

You're no stranger to SXSW. How is this year different?
This is the first year where I'll be staying at a hotel and not sleeping on some weird Airbnb couch three miles away from downtown, because I'm the keynote speaker, and they're going to fly me in and put me up. First and foremost, SXSW is and always has been about f—ing fantastic audiences appreciating movies, but it is a little bit more of a market than it has been traditionally. To be honest, in 2008, when I finished a movie that was too late for Sundance, I didn't really consider SXSW, but you can sell a movie out of SXSW now.

Bonus question

How do you go about finding young filmmakers to foster?

A lot of it is pretty gut-oriented, to be honest. There's a little bit of a profile of that person between the age of 25 and 32 who's made a short or two, or maybe hasn't made a movie but has written a book or their Twitter account shows me that their storytelling acumen or something in them makes them unique. You would think by the success rate that I've had that it's a more vetted process than it is, but usually it's a meeting or two, and "I love this person," or it's someone that I've known intimately for a long time.

THE SECRET TO MARK DUPLASS' SUCCESS IS NOT BEING A JERK.

Bobby Cannavale, Rose Byrne and Nick Kroll star in "Adult Beginners," which Mark Duplass produced. / RADIUS-TWC

Do you know how your keynote will go?

I'm working it out in my head, but I've realized that I enjoy proselytizing about the way I've made things. I find that my career trajectory just happens to be the one that most closely approximates a practical path to success for someone who is coming from nowhere — no connections, nothing — and most of the people who need help are nowhere. The last thing you need to hear right now is, "Anybody can make a movie, just pick up a camera and go." We've been saying this for 20 years. Let's get more specific.

What was your secret?

I didn't know how to break into this industry other than just to keep making stuff from the outside and hope to make some sort of lateral move in, and that ended up happening through Sundance. As I've been looking back over the last 12 years, I've realized something really cool has happened that I didn't plan on. All false modesty aside, I work in this town because I am a nice and supportive person to everyone around me, and people constantly want to give me jobs because they want to be around that kind of energy. I'm finding myself in this weird place where I have more opportunities than I ever dreamed of. The s— I've had to turn down this year you would not believe.

How to (mis)behave like royalty

Interview.

Alexandra Park says her "Royals" character may get in trouble, but she's just searching for a "more meaningful existence."

It's no secret that Americans are a little obsessed with the British monarchy. All that wealth and power must be hiding something pretty scandalous, right? A new series on E! explores just that concept with "The Royals." The titular family gets into all kinds of trouble, from drug use to womanizing to about as much conniving for the throne as you find in the average "Game of Thrones" episode.

Princess Eleanor, in particular, seems to take joy in getting caught in compromising situations. She spends most of her time partying, but Alexandra Park, who plays her, says she'll start to show more inner turmoil about her life: "As the show goes on, different colors of Eleanor are shown. You see the people that she opens up to, and the people that she doesn't. It definitely changes quite a lot."

One of the people she opens up to is her father, the king, whom Park says she has "little precious moments with" as she strives to figure out how to live her royal life. "And sometimes, even with her mum, there's little glimpses of her really showing she wants to mean more than just a party princess," assures Park. That may seem hard to believe, considering the two women are constantly battling with each other. Is there hope for the two of them to repair their relationship, which features one particularly low point when Queen Helena (Elizabeth Hurley) starts censoring Eleanor's obscene Twitter feed?

"Helena and Eleanor are very similar in many ways," says Park. "I have many friends growing up who didn't get along with their mothers, and it was normally, 98 percent of the time, because they were very close and similar so they butt heads."

Despite the occasional Twitter feuds and maternal disapproval, Park assures us, "They love each other; they do. And they show it in weird, kind of twisted ways."

Bonds

Sibling rivalry

One person Eleanor always connects with is her twin brother Liam, played by William Moseley. "Liam and Eleanor are very close. He's constantly looking out for her, and she is for him," says Park. "They don't have any secrets from each other. And I enjoyed playing that with William because we get along kind of like brother and sister as well."

Does that mean she's seen Moseley in his biggest starring role as Peter Pevensie in the "Narnia" movies? Alas no, but Park says, "I will watch them. I've told him I'll watch them shortly."

IN DEFENSE OF SANSA STARK

Geek Girl in Hollywood

JENNA BUSCH

JENNA BUSCH TAKES ON THE WAY POP CULTURE SNUBS ITS FEMALE FANS. VISIT METRO.US/JENNA-BUSCH FOR MORE COLUMNS, AS WELL AS HER SITE, LEGION OF LEIA (WWW.LEGIONOFLEIA.COM)

I'm a huge fan of "Game of Thrones." I'm talking fanatical. However, most of my discussions about the show end with me defending Sansa Stark. In honor of the trailer for Season 5 coming out this week, I wanted to tell you why.

Everyone is an Arya fan. She kicks ass, she defies gender stereotypes, and she and the Hound really deserved their own buddy comedy spinoff. Mention Sansa's name, however, and you mostly get, "Oh, I hate her!"

Sansa grew up on tales of knights and princesses. She does what a young lady is supposed to do (which I realize isn't helping my argument). We modern fans love a rogue, and she is definitely not that. She's a pre-teen girl who's been told all her life that things are supposed to be a certain way. She wants that fairy tale life. She's feminine and soft, and therein lies the problem audiences have with her.

As a society, we don't value the feminine and "girly," and we never have. A "strong female character," as I've said in earlier articles, is usually perceived as someone who is tough and kicks ass. As I said, I love that, too. However, there is value on both sides of the coin. Sansa is a well-written, fully realized character. She's a survivor.

Using tactics like Arya's wouldn't have worked in any of the situations Sansa was in. Sure, it would have been terribly satisfying to see Sansa run Joffrey through with a sword, but she would have been killed right after.

So, this intelligent girl (with severe PTSD, I might add — how would you handle seeing your father killed in front of you, dealing with an attempted gang rape, being forcibly engaged to Joffrey and losing your entire family?) flies under the radar, plays along and adapts.

Sansa's passivity and "girliness" may have gotten her into the situation, but they've also gotten her out. Her ability to adapt has saved her life. She's taken her "weaknesses" and turned them into strengths. As we saw in her final moments in Season 4, she's adapting yet again, and no one is going to see her coming. Give that girl a lemon cake!

This "Game of Thrones" regular is deceptively resilient. / HBO

Five incredible sights in Peru

Ancient sites, mysterious monuments, natural wonders and more.

Five tips for first-time cruisers

How to make sure your first Caribbean cruise is everything you've imagined.

History isn't the only thing attracting visitors to this iconic site.

Five incredible sights in Peru

Machu Picchu

The Sacred Valley of the Incas

Nazca Lines

Lake Titicaca

Cotahuasi Canyon

From Pacific beaches to coastal deserts, and from the Andes Mountains and ancient Inca sites to thick rainforests, Peru is a hugely diverse country. Here are just five of its most not-to-be-missed sights.

Machu Picchu

Still the biggest draw in Peru, and one of the wonders of the world, the Inca city of Machu Picchu should be top of everyone's must-see list. It stands 7,970 feet high in the Andes, above the Sacred Valley of the Incas, and its origins are still debated. Reconstruction of many of its buildings gives a glimpse into what it must have looked like when it was built over 500 years ago.

The Sacred Valley of the Incas

About an hour from the Inca capital of Cusco, itself a major attraction, is the Urubamba Valley. This was the center of the Inca Empire, chosen for its beauty and fertility, watered as it is by several rivers that cut their way through a dramatic landscape.

Nazca Lines

Yet another of Peru's many Unesco World Heritage Sites, these hundreds of ancient geoglyphs show humans, animals, birds, straight lines and geometric patterns. Some of the lines are as long as 1,200 feet and are plainly visible from the air. It's believed they were carved by the Nazca people, from about 400 CE until the civilization died out in around 700 CE — but their purpose remains a mystery.

The Urubamba Valley in the Andes was the heart of the Inca Empire. Several rivers cut through the lush landscape.

Lake Titicaca

Like Timbuktu, the very name of Lake Titicaca appeals, and it won't disappoint. The largest lake in South America and the highest navigable lake in the world at 12,507 feet, this is the Peru of your imagination: llamas, women in bowler hats, mountain peaks and crisp, pure air.

Cotahuasi Canyon

More remote than the better-known Colca Canyon, Cotahuasi has the distinction of being the deepest canyon in the world. It's twice as deep as the Grand Canyon. A hiking trip here is one of Peru's many highlights.
INSIGHT GUIDES | MIKE GERRARD AND DONNA DAILEY

Five tips for first-time cruisers

If you've never been on a ship before, it may seem like a whole new world of travel. Here are some tips to help you feel more comfortable.

1 Different cruise lines serve different types of passengers. Research a line fully before committing.

2 Be aware that those cool new features you've read about — the bumper cars, skydiving simulators and restaurants run by celebrity chefs — are likely only on the newest ships in the fleet, so be sure to check what ship you'll be traveling on before plunking down your cash.

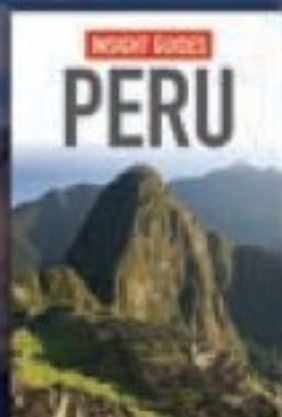

3 The largest ships can have more than 30 cabin categories, so invest some time in determining what you get at the various price points.

4 If your chosen line offers a choice of routes, take the time to research which ports are smaller, get the fewest cruise ships and have the best beaches.

5 Extras like massage appointments, shore excursions and peak-time dinner reservations can get fully booked, so put your name down early.

TMI. This new app wants to be the FitBit of masturbation

There really is an app for everything. College students Rishub Nagpal and Forrest Cinelli have created an app called the Beater Meter, a FitBit-style program that tracks a user's masturbation habits. We talked to Nagpal, 18, about their app.

How does your app work?

This can work with any smart watch — [it] is more of a statistics tracker and social integration thing. It's more of a user app than a wristband.

What are the features of your app?

One of them is social; you can post to your friends on our inside network. If you're not into that, it's fine — you can do personalized statistics tracking. We have achievements and a leader board. You can export your data to Excel, and we have our own graph program, too. We have a call-screening auto reply.

What does the auto reply say?

You can set a personalized message. Let's say you get a call from your girlfriend; it can go automatically to voicemail, and we have automated text messages like "Hey, I'm busy," "I'm driving" — whatever you want. You can have fun with your hand and get going. Through our Indie-gogo page, we can send you a wristband that's reusable that you can tie to your phone.

Beater Meter at work.
/ PROVIDED

When are you hoping to officially launch?

We're hoping for a May/June launch — that's when our product will be out.

Who had the idea?

I was hanging out with some friends, and one had a smart watch and we started teasing him, "Hey, can you watch porn on it?" and we bounced around ideas, and it came to mind. I called Forrest [Cinelli] and we started talking, and it just grew. ANDREA PARK

How to tell if your date is lying to you

Blind dates. These are the signs you should be looking for.

It's one of the biggest fears anyone who has ever agreed to meet up with someone on an app has — what if your date is lying to you?

"There are a couple of things you can do in the beginning to test someone," says Maryann Karinch, the author of the new book "Nothing But the Truth: Secrets from Top Intelligence Experts to Control Conversations and Get the Information You Need." "You can learn to ask questions on a first date or to someone you just met at a party."

Karinch is an expert on reading people, literally. A body language and lie-detection expert, Karinch has worked with the Department of Homeland Security and other officials to provide trainings and workshops.

Wondering how you can start weeding out liars right away? Here are Karinch's suggestions:

Think about your phrasing

"Ask yes or no questions," Karinch advises.

If only it were this easy to identify if someone is lying to you.
/ ISTOCK

"Because then you expect a yes or no answer. If he's repeating the question rather than answering or evading, you need to ask yourself, 'Why won't he answer?'"

Watch their reactions

It's important to also listen to your date's tone in addition to his or her words. "If she seems measured and relaxed in her tone, you think, 'She seems pleasant,'" notes Karinch. "But then if, all of the sudden, she gets nervous and her hand goes to her neck when she starts talking about her family, you learn two things. One is that talking about her family makes her stressed and, two, that she touches her neck when she's stressed."

Gestures like touching your neck or hair or rubbing your fingers together are called adaptors, says Karinch. "We all do them. ... Normal people, when they tell a lie, they are under stress — and it leaks out."

Trust your instincts

Karinch notes that people who have been lied to or cheated on often realize after the fact that there were signs that they overlooked. "We have a lot of these skills already," Karinch notes. "What we are looking for is glitchy behavior. A lot of times, we ignore signs and signals that would give us important behavior clues. So that gut feeling [you got], you were picking up on something."

LAKSHMI GANDHI
@LakshmiGandhi
lakshmi.gandhi@metro.us

Look for nervous ticks

Karinch says these are some of the more common gestures people do when they are hiding something:

- Men: Rubbing their hands together, rubbing their legs
- Women: Playing with their earrings or hair, touching their necks

FOR ADULTS WITH TYPE 2 DIABETES

Januvia® works
when my blood sugar
is HIGH...

...and works less
when my
blood sugar
is LOW.

Actor portrayal.

JANUVIA works by enhancing your body's own ability to lower blood sugar.

- JANUVIA is a prescription pill you take once a day.
- JANUVIA, along with diet and exercise, helps lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause blood sugar going too low (hypoglycemia), because it works less when blood sugar is low.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause weight gain.

JANUVIA (jah-NEW-vee-ah) should not be used in patients with type 1 diabetes or with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in the blood or urine). If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting it while taking JANUVIA.

Selected Risk Information About JANUVIA

Serious side effects can happen in people who take JANUVIA, including pancreatitis, which may be severe and lead to death. Before you start taking JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you've ever had pancreatitis. Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

Do not take JANUVIA if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including sitagliptin. Symptoms of serious allergic reactions to JANUVIA, including rash, hives, and swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty breathing or swallowing, can occur. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away.

Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis, have been reported.

If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include headache, drowsiness, weakness, dizziness, confusion, irritability, hunger, fast heart beat, sweating, and feeling jittery.

Please read the Medication Guide on the adjacent page for more detailed information.

Merck Helps™ | Having trouble paying for your Merck medicine?
Merck may be able to help. www.merckhelps.com

Your doctor may do blood tests before and during treatment with JANUVIA to see how well your kidneys are working. Based on these results, your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA. The most common side effects of JANUVIA are upper respiratory tract infection, stuffy or runny nose and sore throat, and headache.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. You can enroll in this registry by calling 1-800-986-8999.

- are breast-feeding or plan to breast-feed. It is not known if JANUVIA will pass into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby if you are taking JANUVIA.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Know the medicines you take. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your doctor and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

How should I take JANUVIA?

- Take JANUVIA 1 time each day exactly as your doctor tells you.
- You can take JANUVIA with or without food.
- Your doctor may do blood tests from time to time to see how well your kidneys are working. Your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA based on the results of your blood tests.
- Your doctor may tell you to take JANUVIA along with other diabetes medicines. Low blood sugar can happen more often when JANUVIA is taken with certain other diabetes medicines. See “What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?”.
- If you miss a dose, take it as soon as you remember. If you do not remember until it is time for your next dose, skip the missed dose and go back to your regular schedule. Do not take two doses of JANUVIA at the same time.
- If you take too much JANUVIA, call your doctor or local Poison Control Center right away.
- When your body is under some types of stress, such as fever, trauma (such as a car accident), infection or surgery, the amount of diabetes medicine that you need may change. Tell your doctor right away if you have any of these conditions and follow your doctor's instructions.
- Check your blood sugar as your doctor tells you to.

- Stay on your prescribed diet and exercise program while taking JANUVIA.
- Talk to your doctor about how to prevent, recognize and manage low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), high blood sugar (hyperglycemia), and problems you have because of your diabetes.

What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?

Serious side effects have happened in people taking JANUVIA.

- See “What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?”.
- Low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar, such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include:

• headache	• irritability
• drowsiness	• hunger
• weakness	• fast heart beat
• dizziness	• sweating
• confusion	• feeling jittery
- Serious allergic reactions. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away. See “Who should not take JANUVIA?”. Your doctor may give you a medicine for your allergic reaction and prescribe a different medicine for your diabetes.
- Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis

The most common side effects of JANUVIA include:

- upper respiratory infection
- stuffy or runny nose and sore throat
- headache

JANUVIA may have other side effects, including:

- stomach upset and diarrhea
- swelling of the hands or legs, when JANUVIA is used with rosiglitazone (Avandia®). Rosiglitazone is another type of diabetes medicine.

These are not all the possible side effects of JANUVIA. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you, is unusual or does not go away.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

How should I store JANUVIA?

Store JANUVIA at 68°F to 77°F (20°C to 25°C).

Keep JANUVIA and all medicines out of the reach of children.

General information about the use of JANUVIA

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes that are not listed in Medication Guides. Do not use JANUVIA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give JANUVIA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Medication Guide summarizes the most important information about JANUVIA. If you would like to know more information, talk with your doctor. You can ask your doctor or pharmacist for additional information about JANUVIA that is written for health professionals. For more information, go to www.JANUVIA.com or call 1-800-622-4477.

What are the ingredients in JANUVIA?

Active ingredient: sitagliptin

Inactive ingredients: microcrystalline cellulose, anhydrous dibasic calcium phosphate, croscarmellose sodium, magnesium stearate, and sodium stearyl fumarate. The tablet film coating contains the following inactive ingredients: polyvinyl alcohol, polyethylene glycol, talc, titanium dioxide, red iron oxide, and yellow iron oxide.

What is type 2 diabetes?

Type 2 diabetes is a condition in which your body does not make enough insulin, and the insulin that your body produces does not work as well as it should. Your body can also make too much sugar. When this happens, sugar (glucose) builds up in the blood. This can lead to serious medical problems.

High blood sugar can be lowered by diet and exercise, and by certain medicines when necessary.

Don't harsh the buzz... tax it

Re: 'Harshing the buzz' (Metro, March 11) I find it funny that nine out of 10 teens tried smoking pot when I was in school, and now I'm sure that number is even higher given the way the world is. Yet never have I nor anyone I know here in this establishment of over 1,500 people heard of someone having an allergic reaction, going to the hospital or anything even remotely similar.

People are allergic to nuts, some so severely they can't be in the same building with them ... yet all grocers sell nuts. People are allergic to dogs but we don't feel the need to limit the amount of dogs in the country to help out those few that are allergic. People are allergic to trees, seeds, ragweed, various different foods, even alcohol. This doesn't prevent the rest of the country from experiencing all those things. Perhaps people should consider the advantages such as your underfunded schools. You know, the places where parents expect a free, good education but don't feel the need to work or pay taxes? The taxes alone for legalized marijuana sales could balance the budget of the city in less than three years. Considering cigarette smokers are already paying for everything this city does, why not expand the extortion?

A-10 tournament kicks off

The St. Joe's Hawks and La Salle Explorers have slim NCAA tournament hopes and each needs to win the A-10 tournament to earn a berth. La Salle (16-16) plays UMass (17-14) at noon Thursday while the Hawks (13-17) play St. Bonaventure (17-12) at 6:30 p.m. Both games air on NBCSN.

Flyers go from contention to embarrassment

NHL. The Flyers are almost ready to turn their attention to next season.

Steve Mason didn't parse his words — he was humiliated. The Flyers, less than a week ago, were on the cusp of playoff contention, just seconds away from beating the Bruins in regulation and sitting just two points behind them in the playoff race.

But sometimes, you are what your record says you are. And the Flyers' slow start, inconsistent defense and lack of secondary scoring support cost the team three straight losses at the worst possible time.

They now sit nine points behind the Bruins after a 2-1 loss to the Stars Tuesday.

"I'm embarrassed," Mason said after the winnable game slipped away Tuesday. But perhaps he was talking about their weekend too. "I hope everybody else is embarrassed because we have an effort like that at home in situations where we have to come up big, and we come up empty. We have to be a lot better."

Mason and the Flyers also faltered against the lowly Devils Sunday, as the Bruins took care of business on the days the Flyers lost, expanding their lead and putting the Flyers on the verge of playoff elimination.

"I think after a tough weekend with a lot of emotions, it still could've gone either way tonight," Vincent Lecavalier said, referring both to the Stars loss and the devastating weekend.

is Blues and the Calgary Flames, two big wins last week. But they can't keep their level of play up to defeat some of the NHL's bottom-feeders like the Devils or the Sabres.

With very little left to play for, the Flyers no longer need to watch the scoreboard. Baring some catastrophic breakdown over the last month of the season, the Bruins will probably easily make the postseason.

"You can't look at the standings," Ryan White said. "It's in here. It's the way we play. We played well those two games last week like you said, and we've just got to be better in here."

Revere, Phillies offense has a lot to prove in new season

MLB. Phillies center fielder Ben Revere knows the team will need to "pick up the slack" in 2015.

Ben Revere is hoping to add some elements to his game. The speedy, slap hitter has been working on driving the ball in the offseason.

"That's part of what I'm hoping to do," Revere said. "I'd like to hit the ball into gaps and add an extra dimension to what I do. It would help us. I'll do whatever I can to help."

The Phillies offense, which struggled to score runs last season, figures to be at a deficit after the trades of two of its top forces at the plate, Jimmy Rollins and Marlon Byrd.

Can Revere contend for a batting title again in 2015? / GETTY IMAGES

"We're going to have to pick up the slack," Revere said. "Those two guys took a lot of runs with them. But I'm going to try to up my game. I'm feeling stronger. I think I can hit some gaps this year and run. I would like to turn some of the singles I hit into doubles and some doubles into triples."

Revere believes he'll have a big season on the base paths. "I had the screws taken out [of my ankle] and I feel great. I'm moving as well as ever. I'm feeling good, and I want to be more aggressive than ever on the bases and at the plate."

This would make for a different Revere, who has been instructed to hit the ball on the ground throughout his major league career.

"It's true," Revere said. "It's been mostly about hitting the ball down and using my speed but I'm going to try to put the ball in the air more. I'm not talking about trying to hit home runs but hit line drives that find that gap."

Revere is also working on his center field play.

"I'm working on running the best routes possible," Revere said. "I'm trying to get better every day, and when I look around here, everyone is trying to get better. You look at [Ryan Howard] and I have a feeling he is going to go out there and show you what he can really do. And then you have Dom Dog; if he stays healthy, watch out. If things break right, we're going to surprise people."

Hamels shaky in second spring start

Perhaps it's the trade buzz once again reaching a fevered pitch after the Cliff Lee injury.

Or maybe he's just working some things out. It is, after all, just an exhibition game.

Cole Hamels gave up a two-run homer to Jordy Mercer Wednesday but hung on for three innings of solid work in a 3-2 win over Pittsburgh.

Jonathan Papelbon came in and tossed a perfect fourth inning in relief as relievers Mario Hollands and Elvis Araujo pitched well too.

Ben Revere, Cesar Hernandez, Jeff Francoeur and Maikel Franco each contributed hits in the matinee.

Philly is back in action Thursday, as Jerome Williams will start against the Tigers' Justin Verlander.

FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

West Chester, PA - Fred Beans, CEO and founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, March 14th at 9:00AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, Fred Beans Ford Lincoln of West Chester is selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, Fred Beans Ford Lincoln of West Chester has a great selection of new Fords and Lincolns.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired for this sale at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interest."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that's right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of March 14th, after the close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10 million in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less-than-perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive home a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first-time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at Fred Beans Ford Lincoln of West Chester this Saturday, March 14th, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.*

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van, or sport utility vehicle, don't miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

No move for Mariota

NFL. Chip Kelly made his case for Sam Bradford, who appears to be the Eagles' next starting quarterback.

Chip Kelly made himself pretty clear during his surprise Wednesday news conference.

"Let's dispel the rumors right now; we would never mortgage our future," Kelly said, going on to explain that the Eagles have way too many needs to move up and give up valuable assets in order to acquire Marcus Mariota, his old quarterback at Oregon.

"We are not going to mortgage our future for any individual player," Kelly continued. "We aren't going to package 20 picks or whatever to move up from (No.) 20. We have not looked at anything; we have not had any discussions with anyone."

It seems point-blank, even more so with Kelly spending the vast majority of his news conference discussing Sam Bradford, the Rams' one-time first overall pick and frequently injured quarterback.

The Birds shocked the NFL and Eagles fans Tuesday afternoon when it was announced that, along with a bunch of mid-round draft picks, Philly was swapping Nick Foles with St. Louis' Bradford.

Kelly shrugged the suggestion that he was unwise trading for a player who has suffered two ACL injuries, and who missed all of 2014.

"The injury rate in the NFL is 100 percent," Kelly said. "It just matters what the severity of it is. Jeremy Maclin had an unbelievable year for us; he's coming off of two ACL injuries."

"It's very rare you have a quarterback in this league that hasn't been hit, hasn't been knocked out."

Kelly cited Peyton Manning, Drew Brees and even Tom Brady as great quarterbacks who have missed significant time due to injury. So is Bradford, 27 years old, the quarterback of the future in Philly? Kelly was noncommittal.

"Everything is a one-year season for everybody, that's what this league is," the coach said. "We wouldn't have traded for him if we didn't think he had an enormous upside as a quarterback."

Bradford is a former Heisman Trophy-winner and has played under his potential in St. Louis, though he certainly has shown glimpses of elite play, a fact Kelly knows well.

"We looked at every throw Sam's made in the NFL," Kelly said, explaining that his play on the field looks better than his numbers suggest. "I think everybody is a by-product of what's around you."

Bradford has thrown for 59 touchdowns and 38 interceptions in parts of four seasons with the Rams.

Welcome Matthews

Eagles address running back

The Eagles pinpointed (maybe the first) replacement for the team's departed all-time rush leader LeSean McCoy, signing former Chargers running back Ryan Matthews to a three-year, $12 million contract.

Matthews, who is injury prone but a former first-round pick (just like Sam Bradford), has two 1,000-yard seasons under his belt, including 1,255 yards and six touchdowns back in 2013.

He missed ten games in 2014 due to a sprained MCL, and an ankle injury lost him his job to Braydon Oliver.

Somewhat surprisingly, it is being reported by ESPN's Adam Schefter that the Birds are still in hot pursuit of free agent running back DeMarco Murray.

Murray is fresh off leading the NFL in rushing yards and is being chased by the Cowboys (his former team), Raiders, Eagles and others.

EVAN MACY

Injury-prone Birds

Chip Kelly said he was not concerned with the health of the newest Eagles. Should he be?

- Sam Bradford had a shoulder injury in college that kept him out of the 2010 combine. He missed time with a lower body injury in 2011 and tore his ACL in 2013 and again in 2014. He missed 29 of 80 games.

- Ryan Matthews has only played 16 games once in a season (2013), missing 18 of 80 games as a pro.

- Kiko Alonso will also be recovering from a torn ACL that cost him the 2014 season. He may not be cleared for full contact until training camp begins in July.

- Newly signed cornerback Walter Thurmond had a season-ending injury in 2011 and was suspended four games for substance abuse in Seattle. He also missed most of last season with a torn pectoral as a member of the Giants.
